Notice Regarding Completion of the Acquisition of US Company Continental Structural Plastics (Update on Previously Disclosed Matter)

Teijin Limited (the “Company”) announced today that it made US-based Continental Structural Plastics Holdings Corporation (CSP) a wholly owned subsidiary on January 3, 2017 (U.S. Time), after satisfaction of customary closing conditions related to the transfer of shares, including regulatory approval, as announced in the “Notice Regarding Acquisition of US Company Continental Structural Plastics” dated September 13, 2016.

Through this acquisition, the Company will realize significant materials synergies, with CSP, enabling the combined companies to utilize high-performance composites technologies including glass fiber reinforced thermosets and thermoplastics, carbon fiber, aramid fibers and multi-material hybrid composite solutions. These materials will be used to manufacture a range of lightweight components including Class A body panels, pickup boxes, battery carriers and a number of structural applications that will help the global automotive industry meet design and regulatory challenges. The Company will enhance its global development capabilities as a solution provider, allowing the combined business to better address the requirements of global automakers. The automotive composite products business of the Company is targeting annual sales of USD 2.0 billion by 2030.

The final total acquisition cost amounted to USD 825 million.

CSP became a consolidated subsidiary of the Company upon completion of the acquisition, but this is expected to have a negligible impact on consolidated financial results for the fiscal year ending March 31, 2017.
